“ This is almost two years late, but I just found out that Jill passed recently. I worked with Jill for three years, 2011-2014. I liked her immediately – we were both skeptics, progressives, and maybe a bit cynical. She was a very knowledgeable nurse. She was very proud of her baking skills, and made everyone on our shift a fancy dessert from scratch on their birthday; I had never heard of schaum torte until Jill made it for me, and I still tell people about it to this day. When I quit the job where I worked with Jill, I only told her, gave her my badge, and she hugged me. I miss her a lot. My heart goes out to her family. Jill was one of a kind and a dedicated caregiver. If you read this Neveah, Jill talked about you all the time, and you were a bright spot that cheered her up when we were working in a negative workplace.
