His family will cherish the time they got to reconnect these past few years and that they got the chance to express to him just how much he was missed and loved by them. They as a family got to laugh, reminisce, and tell stories of the many crazy and fun family experiences they all had through the years. His family was also a support system when his wife, Lynn passed away.

Robert's life was full of adventures, lots of love, and laughter. He will be remembered as a very independent man that didn't follow the crowd and created a life for himself that made him truly happy.

He was preceded in death by his wife Lynn Reid, and his mother, Lily Reid.
